Murrayfield Golf Club, Edinburgh

Murrayfield Golf Club is an icon within the city of Edinburgh, with unparalleled views over the beautiful Scottish capital, the course offers everything golfers love about the game.

In spring 2021, PMP Surfacing were invited to assess the resurfacing of numerous sections of the course pathways using Flexipave. Installed in a piecemeal fashion over many years, the existing paths at Murrayfield were an eclectic mix of different materials, including tarmac, TopTrek, AstroTurf, rubber blocks and grid cell matting.

Many were in a state of disrepair, while others were difficult to maintain; there was a clear desire to upgrade all the paths to create a smarter, more unified appearance across the course.

Murrayfield's Sustainable Path

Between 2021 and 2023, PMP Surfacing supplied and installed over 5,000 m² of Flexipave. In addition to providing the labour for the larger sections, the PMP Surfacing team trained Murrayfield's greenkeeping staff to install smaller sections themselves. This approach gave the club greater flexibility and allowed the project to progress at a faster pace.

To date, the recycled rubber used in this project has repurposed 16,000 vehicle tyres. Had these tyres been incinerated for TDF (tyre-derived fuel), they would have released 352,000 kg of CO_2.

Key Benefits

- Highly Porous
- Flexible
- Available in a variety of colours
- Can be installed on to a number of different Sub-base types

Testimonial

“Choosing Flexipave has been a great success in terms of look, performance, and ease of installation. Feedback from the members has been very positive. The greens team are also delighted with the result and are already identifying other areas on the course where the product could be used to improve appearance and reduce maintenance, for example around tee markers to reduce damage to the markers from grass cutting".
